A Trying Time.

It takes a deal of courage for me to write this, for I am a bashful man; and, indeed, if I were not, one could not wonder at my disinclination to make public such peculiarly trying events as occurred to me at the time of which I am about to write.

It was in the summer of 18—. Ned Nixon and myself were enjoying a trip to the White Hills, and enjoying it most heartily, too.

I shall never forget that ride through the Notch. The only persons in the stage besides ourselves were a jolly old gentleman and two lovely girls—one his daughter, the other his niece. Although strangers to us when we left Conway, we were soon good friends, for who can resist the sociability of a stage-ride? And when did two good-looking young men and two pretty girls pass two or three hours together without scraping acquaintance?

But I hurry over all this, for the perspiration is already oozing from every pore at the thought of what befell me, and of what I have to record; if I do not hurry, I shall not have strength to proceed.

We dined at the Mount Crawford, of course, and late in the afternoon drew up before Gibb's Hotel, which every one remembers as lying at the foot of Mount Washington.

The only drawback to the pleasure of our ride had been the dust, and when we stopped we were all dressed alike in gray suits.

We were in haste to have rooms assigned us, and make ourselves presentable. The young ladies were told by their chaperon to wait for him in the reception-room while he attended to the luggage, etc.

Ned was marched off to the apartment allotted him.

I hailed a green-looking son of Erin, and begging him to dispose of me in the same way, was about to follow him up-stairs, when I bethought me to look after my trunk, that he might take that with him.

Judge of my feelings when I found that it had been left behind! Here was a pretty go! The driver could not tell whether it was at the Mount Crawford or at Conway; in either case, I could not get it until the next day.

Swearing was useless, so, with a melancholy gesture, I bade Pat go ahead, and following him up two pair of stairs, was ushered into a very well furnished and good-sized apartment. The next thing was how to make myself presentable at the tea-table without the aid of the toilet appurtenances contained in my trunk.

As I surveyed myself in the glass, a more deplorable figure could not well be imagined. I took off coat and pants and gave them to Pat, with orders to give them a thorough beating and brushing, out of doors, and then bring them up to me.

Before further disrobing for bathing, purposes, I looked around my room, and saw a door, apparently a closet door. I opened it, and, sure enough there was a marvelously spacious closet, which, in a hotel, is a great rarity. I think some maligant fairy was behind me at that time, for what did possess me to explore that closet so leisurely? and what else would have caused the door to so nearly close behind me?

Suffice it to say, these things did take place, and, hearing a noise in the room, I turned, thinking to see Pat with my coat and pants, when through the crack where the closet door stood ajar, I beheld entering my apartment the young ladies who were our traveling companions in the stage. I had the presence of mind to draw the closest door to before they had turned toward it, and faculties benumbed at the turn of my situation, heard them cooly tell the waiter that the room would suit them very well—he might go down and bring up their trunks. I shook in every limb. What was I to do? Speak and make known the plight I was in, thus making myself ridiculous, and lose all chance of winning favor in the eyes of Fanny, for whom I had already conceived a tender passion? No, never!

What should be done? Would the waiter, returning with my clothes, make search for me, and finding, expose me to the gaze of —— Oh, horrors! my blood ran cold at the thought. I found myself unable to think clearly. The perspirstion was pouring down my body, that is, if slowly trickling can be called pouring, for, mingling with the dust, it became about the consistency of good sugar-house molassas.

Meantime the young ladies were throwing off their outer garments, and expressing themselves well pleased with their quarters.

"This savors of romance, Fan," said Mabel.

"Ugh!" I inwardly groaned. "I think so, decidedly."

"It certainly does," continued Miss Mabel; "to fall in with two such elegant young men, and so early in our journey; but Ned is my favorite."

"Theodore is mine, May," said Fanny. "I'm in love with him already."

(I began to think life had not lost all its charms.)

"Well, then, we're both suited."

"The gintleman's clothes, ma'am."

Wasn't there? Oh, heavens! what should I do? There were my clothes going off before my very ears, and no knowing whether I should ever see them again. There was no help for it, and I heard Pat's bewildered tones as he turned away from the door to look elsewhere for the "gintleman."

This episode over, Fanny and Mabel commenced what appeared to be a disrobing process, and I was roused from my apathetic state of despair by hearing the former remark:

"I declare, my bones are nearly all broken, May. What shall I do?"

A vision of my dear one with her beautiful limbs fractured so tortured me that I was on the point of rushing to her assistance when I was horrified by hearing her cousin reply:

"Never mind dear. I have a skeleton in my trunk that I will lend you."

Goodness gracious, was I dreaming? What sort of people were these that broke their bones and inserted new (or old) skeletons at their pleasure? My blood grew cold and hot by turns. I lost all thought of my own predicament in my horror; still the disrobing of the maidens proceeded. Then I heard the refreshing sound of splashing water. I imagined—well, no matter what. I do not think I am accountable for all that passed through my bewildered brain at that time.

All this while it had seemed to me that I could bathe and dress a regiment in less time than it had taken those two young women. I had grown so nervous that I was in imminent danger of either laughing or crying aloud—it seemed quite uncertain which.

What would Ned think had become of me? How was I ever to get out of this place? How get my wearing apparel?

"Where under the sun are my rats?" demanded Fanny.

Here was new food for thought. Were they Chinese? Were the rats to be cooked for their supper? Are these specimens of woman as a class?

"Theodore," said I to myself, "in what a state of ignorance have you lived, my boy! How innocently you have always regarded the sex!

The rats seemed to have been captured without difficulty, though, in spite of my sufferings, I listened for squeals.

"Are the irons hot, Fan?"

Horrors heaped upon horrors. Could those two lovely girls be about to put rats to death in that most inhuman fashion? I must protect against it; and yet, the disgrace of being found. No; the rats might die before I would venture a word in their behalf.

I find myself utterly unable to give any adequate idea of my feelings during that terrible time, and occasionally the thought of the ridiculous figure I should present, could any one have seen me, over came all other emotions, and I came near laughing aloud.

At last (as near as I could judge) the young ladies had completed their toilets. The rustling of silk told me that, if I was ever to get out of my prison, I should soon have the opportunity.

The tea-gong sounded, and I felt like shouting for joy. The old gentleman knocked at the door of the room, and as the young ladies opaned it, I heard the voice of my friend Ned. How cheery it sounded, how refreshed he seemed to feel, and how I wanted to throttle him, as if he had been the cause of my misfortunes. At last their retreating voices and footsteps assured me that I was safe, and with a bound I sprang from my hiding-place, making at once for the bell-rope and door-key. Just as I reached the latter, the door opened, and Ned stood before me! Never shall I forget his expression. Surprise, horror, incredulity, dismay, everything that a man's face could convey, was there.

"Thode Marston——"

"Stop, for Heaven's sake, Ned, and help me," I exclaimed, piteously; and in as few words as possible I told my dismal tale.

In return he burst into a fit of laughter, so protracted that I at first grew enraged, then alarmed, lest serious consequences should ensue.

Finally, after taking Miss Mabel her fan, for which he had returned to the room, he succeeded in finding the waiter, who had an extra suit of clothes in his hands, and who had so stupidly allotted another's room to me without giving any notice at the office; and by the time the ladies returned from the supper room I was presentable, though feeling rather weak in the joints, I must confess.

Ned had promised secrecy upon his honor, but his black eyes did twinkle when Miss Fanny asked how I had enjoyed myself since our arrival, at which I blushed so excessively that I knew she thought me a fool. I confess that it took me some days to recover from the effects of that afternoon; but Fanny's sweet face, and my ardent love for her, drove all unpleasant impressions away at last.

She is my wife now; and, for the benefit of my bachelor friends, and lest they should reel alarmed at some parts of my story, I will say that all that about the bones, skeletons, rats, etc, wasn't what I thought at all; in fact, it was nothing terrible, and if they want to feel sure of it, I would advise them to get just such a wife as I have and then you will soon understand all about it.

Nomination by Washington Rejected.

The question of the probable action of the Senate in regard to the nominations of the President recalls the first instance of the rejection of a nomination by the Senate. Benjamin Fishbourne as naval officer at Savannah. Washington, while promptly substituting another name, sent a respectful remonstrance to the Senate, showing a painful consciousness of what he considered to be a reflection cast upon his judgment or his motives. He said that he did not doubt the reason for rejection seemed to the Senate to be ample, but he submitted whether, when the propriety of a nomination appeared to be questionable, it might not be expedient to ask the reasons. He proceeded at once to state the grounds upon which he made the nomination, which were entirely conclusive. Washington's statement was so impressive that the Senate immediately confirmed the nomination of the subsitute, and no other nomination of Washington's was ever rejected.

The only reason known for the refusal of the Senate to confirm Colonel Fishbourne, was the opposition of Senators from Georgia, which was supposed to be political, and of the kind which has since become so familiar.—Harper's Weekly.

New Dodge.

'I beg your pardon,' said a slouchily dressed individual, reaching for a burr which adhered to the coat sleeve of a gentleman just ahead of him; there's a burr on your coat, sir; permit me to remove it. 'Thank you, no consequence,' said the gentleman, himself removing the burr. The impecunious one struck an attitude, told the regulation story of hunger, and preferred a request for 10 cents with which to buy bread. He got the money but still lingered. 'What is it, my man?' asked the gentleman. 'Please, sir,' replied the tramp, 'you have my burr in your hand. I'd like it, if you please. It's my capital you know?' 'Your capital?' 'Yes, my capital; you see, I sticks it into a cove what looke downy you know, and then I steps up and takes it off. Sometimes I only get thanks for my trouble, and sometimes I don't get that much; and then some of them comes down handsome. Yes, boss, that's my capital; couldn't do business without it; haye to shut up shop, you know.'

How Trees Pump Water.

Some idea of the necessity of preserying our forests, in order to protect the valleys from disastrous inundations may be gathered from the fact that Dr. J. M. Anders, in the official report of the geological survey of Wisconsin, says that the average amount of water pumped from the earth and exhaled by soft, thin-leaved plants in clear weather amounts to about one and one-fourth ounce troy per day of twelye hours for every square foot of surface. 'Hence,' says the doctor, 'a moderate-sized elm raises and throws off seven and three-fourths tons of water per day.'

It seems to be the ambition of young wives to look well when any one calls. A young bride heard a ring at the front door. The maid was out, and she rushed up stairs to "tidy" a little before admitting the caller. There was a moment of lightning work before the dressing table. Quicker than it takes to tell it, a ribbon was fastened to her throat, a flower into her hair, a flash of powder on her face, and she was at the door—all smiles and blushes. The "gentleman" said he had the cheapest clothes-props that could be bought for the money.

Mrs. Cuttles Surprise Party.

LAST Thursday was the anniversary of Mr. Cuttle's marriage, and so his wife thought she would get up a little surprise party for his benefit. She went around the neighborhood with great secrecy and invited all the neighbors, together with certain of her husband's business friends, and laid out a programme of refreshments well calculated to please. Everybody was to meet at the house at nine o' clock sharp, and give Mr. Cuttle such a surprise when he came home as would start the filling in his back teeth. But it fell out that Mr. Cuttle had got hold of a bad headache that day, and, contrary to custom, he came home at seven o'clock. His wife was out in the shed at the time, concocting the low-necked ice-cream, and, not finding her, Mr. Cuttle went directly to bed, and was sleeping as sound as a bank watchman; and two hours later when the guests arrived, he was scheduled for an all-night run, and no stops at way stations. And all innocently the merry, merry guests filed in, speaking in hushed whispers and treading on each other's dresses, and were shown into the darkened parlor, in order to jump out when Mr. Cuttle should arrive, and thus make the surprise absolutely perfect. And there they stayed and stayed and stayed and stayed for three never-ending hours, while Mrs. Cuttle kept wondering whereever her husband could be, and running to the door to look for him, and crying, till a little man in a red necktie, who was tired of having a fat woman standing on his feet, wanted to know rather sarcastically if it wouldn't be a good idea, just by way of variety, to play something else. Then Mrs. Cuttle went into her bedroom to get a fresh handkerchief to cry into, and when she turned up the gas and saw her husband sleeping there so gently and sweetly and peacefully, and with anything but an expression of surprise depicted on his countenance, she went softly back to where the guests were waiting, and pointed out to them in a calm and dispassionate way how much better it would be to go home quietly and say nothing about it. Everybody else felt that way, too, and even seemed anxious about it, while the little man in the red necktie added that while, for his part, he was probably as fond of surprise paaties as any man alive, so far as his observations extended it seemed to him in these joyous occasions that it somehow made a differance as to who was the party surprised.—Rockland Courier Gazette.

A Foolish Father.

'My dear,' said a rich father to his only daughter, a very fashionable girl, you are about to be married and I want to talk to you seriously.'

'Yes, papa,' she said, sitting herself on his knee.

'George is a very worthy young man and abundantly able to take care of you; but this is a very uncertain world. Misfortunes may come when we least expect them and it behooves us at all times to be ready to meet them with a brave, cheerful heart. If, through some chance, your husband should loose his fortune and be reduced to very humble circumstances, do you think that you could accept the new order of things and help him as a true wife should?'

'How can you ask such a question, you foolish pa, when you know how I adore George?'

'This is all very well,' the old man continued; 'but could you, educated to a life of luxury, as you have been, resolutely put aside the past and devote yourself to household duties, such as cooking, and mending, and—and sweeping, and all that sort of things?'

'What a foolish, silly papa you are, to be sure,' replied the girl, playfully tapping the bald spot on his head, 'and how ridiculously you talk. Why, the servants would attend to all those matters.'

There are no children any more. The eleven year-old daughter of a fashionable lady of Marshall, Texas, was observed to be in very deep thought. "What are you thinking about, Mamie?" asked her mother. "I was just wondering whether me or Tommy Jones ought to pay the expenses." "What expenses?" "The traveling expenses of our bridal tour."—Texas Siftings.

'Well, madam, how's your husband to-day?' 'Why, doctor, he's no better.' 'Did you get the leeches?' 'Yes, but he only took three of them raw—I had to fry the rest.'

A Great Practical Joker.

Hack Knober, editor of the Weekly Ker Slosh, a humorous paper, itches for a prominent place among the jesters of America. His marked paragraphs having failed to produce a sensation, and his long articles having been declared to be as dismal as the screak of a wooden hinge, he decided upon making some new attempt.

'I notice,' he mused, one evening, 'that the best humorists in the past were practical jokers. John Phoenix and Artemus Ward made their greatest hits in this way. Now, if I get up a joke on some feller who travels around some drummer who would come around, and tell it—I would soon have a national reputation.'

Hack was soon afforded an opportunity of enforcing this determination. One night at the village hotel he noticed a nervous fellow who traveled for a shoe house.

'That's my man,' mused Hack, 'I'll have him standing on his head to-night. How do you do?—addressing the drummer.

'So, so. What sort of a place is this you've got here? Just now, while standing out there, a dog came up, and it was all I could do to keep him off me.'

'Must have been a mad dog,' replied Hack. 'Good many of them in the neighborhood.'

'Well, that lets me out. I shall leave here in the morning.'

Hack inquired the number of the drummer's room, and late in the evening slipped in and got under the bed.

The drummer came in after awhile and sat down on the edge of the bed.

Hack growled like a dog.

'I hope,' said the drummer aloud, 'that I won't have another fit to-night. I'd better throw this pistol away, for I might kill somebody. No, blamed if I don't keep it. I would'nt mind killing a few such fellows as live in this town. That fool editor ought to die.'

Hack did not growl.

'He ought to go this night. I feel that thing coming on me. Believe I'll sleep under the bed. Then, if any one should come to kill me, they couldn't find me.'

The sharp corners of Hack's bones began to thump the floor.

'Believe I'll shoot under there a couple of times.'

'For God's sake, hold on Mister!' exclaimed Hack, crawling out. 'I wasn't doing anything I——' He made a break for the door.

'Who is that awful fellow?' asked Hack, when he reached the office.

'Why, don't you know him?'

'No.'

'He's going to be your rival here in business. He has bought the News. Saw him laughing just before he went up. Said he was going to have some fun.'

Hack groaned.

'Said one of the boys was trying to play a joke on him. Said that he heard that you were a great practical joker. Don't be in a hurry. Told me that when he got a chance he was going to write you up. Well, good night, old boy.'

No Time for That.

'Yes, the artificial banks along this river made capital breastworks for the Confederates,' said the pilot, as we steamed down the mighty Mississippi. 'Safely sheltered by the heavy walls of earth, I've had more'n one crack at a Yankee gunboat myself.'

'Then you were in the service?'

'Must have been. I belonged to a sort o' independent troop, and most of our fighting was from these 'ere banks. Do you see that grove away off up there?'

'Yes.'

'Well, in war times a big house stood there. Fifty of us were eating dinner there one day when somebody saw a Yankee gunboat along about here. We all rushed for the bank, and when she came along we opened with our muskets. By and by she replied with a shell from a big gun. It struck the bank near the top and jist lifted about ten wagon loads of dirt up in a heap and let it tall on our captain.'

'Kill him?'

'No, I reckon not, but it buried him clear out of sight.'

'How did he feel when you got him out?'

'We didn't git him out.'

'You didn't? Why not!'

'Too busy holding an election for some one to take his place. We couldn't think of everything at once, you know, and then it was such a cheap and easy way of burying a man. They might have dug him out since the war, but I reckon he was no good. Been there too long.'—Free Press.

It is said that Daniel Webster could never go through the streets of Boston without attracting attenion. This may be. Boston streets are fearfully crooked, and Daniel was not a teetotaler.

Can Unset Diamonds be Indentified

Wanting to buy a few precious stones to distribute among my friends before I get my life insured and go to the seaside, I interviewed a diamond merchant down town, and while we were comparing the gems the conversation turned upon the difficulty of indentifying diamonds. Some people assert that they can recognize a certain stone as accurately as other people can recognize a certain man. You take your diamonds to be cleaned or reset and you are sure that you receive the same stones again, although others less valuable, or even paste imitations, may have been substituted. But the experts are sure that they can never be deceived unless the stone has been recuit. Upon this point the diamond merchant told me a good story:

One day another firm in the same business—call it Smith & Jones—sent him a diamond, which was very fine and very cheap. It was set in a ring, so that he could nob weigh it, but after examining it carefully he concluded that its cheapness must be caused by some defect, and so he returned it to the owners. The next week an agent called with another fine, cheap stone, which my friend concluded to purchase. Before binding the bargain he thought he would take it over to Smith & Jones and see what they said about it. They praised it enthusiastically. 'Why, it's a bargain!' cried Smith, and so my friend bought the diamond.

'Aha!' said Jones, when they met the next day, 'you did buy our stone after all, and you paid $50 more for it than we asked for it originally.'

This was gall and wormwood. My friend hurried back to his office and looked at the diamond. Sure enough, it was the stone that Smith & Jones had sent to him. The clever firm had angled for him through an agent and caught him nicely. He matched the diamond, had a pair of ear-rings made and bided his time.

At last he gave the ear-rings and his price to an agent and sent him out to sell them. The agent came back and said: 'Smith & Jones want one of these stones. Will you split the pair?'

'Yes,' said the diamond merchant, sell them this one,' and he took one of the stones out of its settings; the price is so much a carat, as the color is very fine.'

When the agent returned with the check my friend sat down and wrote Smith & Jones the following note:

'Quits! You have bought back your own stone and given me $97 profit. I prefer Pommery Sec.'

It was a case of diamond cut diamond, and it confirmed my doubts as to the possibility of identifying unset stones.

The Insurance Agent and the Dutchman.

A certain Dutchman, owner of a small house, had effected an insurance on it of eight thousand dollars, although it had been built for much less. The house got burned down, and the Dutchman then claimed the full amount for which it had been insured; but the officers of the company refused to pay more than its actual value—about six thousand dollars. He expressed his dissatisfaction in powerful broken English, interlarding his remarks with some choice Tentonic oaths.

'If you wish it,' said the actuary of the insurance company, 'we will build you a house larger and better than the one burned down, as we are positive it can be done for even less than six thousand dollars.'

To this proposition the Dutchman objected, and at last was compelled to take the six thousand dollars. Some weeks after he had received the money he was called upon by the same agent, who wanted him to take out a policy of a life insurance on himself or on his wife.

'If I insure your wife's life for four thousand dollars,' the agent said, 'and she should die, you would have the sum to solace your heart.'

'You 'surance fellows is all t'iefs!' said the Dutchman. 'If I insure my vife, and my vife dies, and if I goes to the office to get my four thousand dollars, do I gets all de money? No, not quite. You vill say to me, 'she vasn't vert four thousand dollars;' she was vert 'bout one thousand dollars. If you don't like de one thousand dollars, we vill give you a bigger and better vife!'

The following is said to be the way to build up a town, and we think it well put:

Write about it.
Help to improve it.
Beautify the streets.
Patronize the merchants.
Advertise in the newspapers.
Elect good men to all the offices.
Pay your taxes without grumbling.
Be courteous to strangers who come among you.
Never let an opportunity to speak a word about it pass.
If you think of nothing good to say about it say nothing bad.
Remember that every dollar you invest as a permanent improvement is that much money at interest.
Never "kick" against any proposed necessary improvement because it is near your own door, for fear your taxes will be raised fifteen cents.

DEMOCRATIC STATE TICKET.

FOR STATE TREASURER,
CONRAD B. DAY,
OF PHILADELPHIA.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY TICKET.

For Jury Commissioner—JOHN ROAN.
For Coroner—Dr. H. K. HOY.

"We denounce, as in flagrant violation of the constitution, the attempt to consolidate the South Pennsylvania and Beech Creek railroads with the Pennsylvania railroad company, and we heartily approve the proceeding of the commonwealth, through the governor and attorney general, to protect and preserve the rights of the people under the constitution."—PENNSYLVANIA DEMOCRATIC STATE PLATFORM.

THINK of Day, talk of Day, and vote for Day—on election day.

CONRAD B. DAY grows in public confidence and esteem day by day, and we are likely to carry the day on the 3rd of November.

CHAIRMAN HENSEL made several strong and effective political speeches in Ohio last week, principally attacking John Sherman's campaign tactics of waving the bloody shirt. The speaker was received with great enthusiasm everywhere by Ohio's democracy.

GOVERNOR Hoadley and Judge Foracker, the opposing candidates for Ohio's governorship, had two interesting joint debates on the issues of the campaign. Both were attended by thousands of people. But after all the sharp and direct questions and answers exchanged by the debaters, Judge Foracker, the republican candidate, still evaded the vital campaign question in the Buckeye state—for or against license, for or against prohibition. The Philadelphia Times defines the gentleman's position in a few words as follows:

Judge Foracker is not for license, neither is he for prohibition. He is for the Governor's office and the salary and appurtenances pertaining thereto.

A CLOSE comparison of Conrad B. Day's record with the one of Matthew S. Quay, brings out in bold contrast the superiority of the former as a candidate for such a responsible office as the state treasurership. This office requires to be filled by a man of the strictest in tegrity. Mr. Day's manly, straightforward and blameless business life, make him the very kind of candidate wanted to handle the people's money. There are no such charges preferred against him, as are written up against his opponent, Mr. Quay. The latter's past career does not furnish evidence of his fitness for any public office, much less one of trust. He was always on the side of public plunderers, making himself peculiarly promiscuous by his efforts to defeat the sentence of the Court in the Kemble bribery case. In short if you would have a pure and honest man for state treasurer, a man of the highest character, vote for Conrad B. Day.

THE Republicans who recently held an anti-Quay meeting in Philadelphia and their utterances about the republican candidate for state treasurer, are proof that public sentiment, in these days of clear judgment and enlightenment, favors honest business men for offices of trust. The corrupting principles of the stalwart Republicans, preferring men for public offices who use their places for political advancement and individual gain, receive a death-dealing blow by this commendable movement of the new element of the Republican party. The time has come when political bosses, ringsters and wire-pullers must take a back seat and a healthy revolution in American politics is taking place. The old-time Republicans of this state, encouraged and blindfolded by the 81,000 Blaine majority, thought it easy work to push a man like Quay in front and elect him with a similar majority for state treasurer. But bosses propose and voters dispose, and if Quay should be elected, which by all appearances is doubtful, it will not be by 81,000 majority—not near.

"We favor the enforcement of the constitution of Pennsylvania in its every article and section, and especially demand the regulation by law, in accordance therewith, of the carrying corporations of the state, the equalization of the tax laws, the appropriation of public moneys to public uses only, an honest management of the state treasury and rigid enforcement of the laws governing it."—PENNSYLVANIA DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM.

—PETERSON'S MAGAZINE for Nov. is on our table—ahead, as usual, of all the other lady's-books. It has a charming steel-plate, "A Feather in Her Cap," a mammoth colored fashion-plate, some fifty other illustrations, and several original stories of unusual power, written by Mrs. A. S. Stephens, Frank Lee Benedict, etc. How the publisher can afford to keep improving the magazine, as he does, is a standing wonder. With our next number appears the Prospectus for next year. It promises even better things; and "Peterson" always keeps his promises. There will be even 1,200 printed pages, 14 steel engravings, 12 mammoth colored steel fashion-plates, from 800 to 900 woodcuts, six copyright novelets, one hundred smaller original stories, etc. In short, the magazine will continue to be as heretofore, the cheapest and best for ladies. The terms are only TWO DOLLARS a year. To clubs, it is cheaper still, viz: four copies for six dollars and a half, with an extra copy to the person getting up the club. Or five copies for eight dollars, with both an extra copy and the "Forget-Me-Not," a beautifully illustrated album, or a large steel-engraving, "The Angel of Paradise." Everybody should take this magazine. Now is the time to subscribe. Address CHARLES J. PETERSON, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. Specimens are sent, gratis, if written for, to get up clubs with.

Cardinal McCloskey Dead.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.--1:20 a. m.--Cardinal McCloskey died at 12:50 o' clock a.m. He died peacefully and surrounded by relatives and clergymen.

The proper construction to be placed upon the school law, as it relates to the attendance of teachers on County Institutes, is being discussed by a number of newspapers, one of which recently published what purported to be a "decision" of Superintendent Higbee, in which he assumed that the attendance of teachers was not "voluntary," but that they were "bound to obey the summons of the County Superintendent." In a late number of the School Journal, of which Dr. Higbee is the editor, he says that "attendance, in a legal sense, is not compulsory," but presumes that "with the reduced number of days now constituting a school month, teachers will consider themselves under a moral obligation to be present and participate in the exercises of annual Institutes in their respective counties."

An Awful Drowning Catastrophe.

KITTANNING, Pa., Oct. 12.—A terrible accident happened on the Mahoning Creek at what is known as Milliron's Dam this afternoon, in which three young folks were on their way to Milliron's Church and there being no bridge, were obliged to row across. When they arrived at the creek, Beckie and Annie Neale, daughters of James Neale, got into a small flat boat with W. H. Neale, as oarsmen. When they had reached the middle of the creek the boat sank. The girls grasped hold of the young man, but the, being an expert swimmer, managed after a terrible struggle to get loose and get to shore. The three girls were drowned. About two hours after the bodies were found. Their ages ranged from 15 to 18 years.

Fierce Prairie Fires.

BISMARK, Dak., Oct. 10. — Three prairie fires were started near this city yesterday, it is thought, by sparks from engines on the Northern Pacific Road. One was started within the city limits and passing north destroyed a large amount of property. This is still raging, and, like all previous prairie fires, it is beyond control of the farmers.

PIERCE, Neb., Oct. 10.—A terrible and wide-spread prairie fire is raging in the northeastern part of this [Pierce] county and in the adjoining counties of Cedar, Wayne and Knox. A high wind has been blowing the last twenty-four hours and the fire has been travelling with remarkable rapidity. The hay on every farm in the course of the fire has been swept off. Many settlers have lost barns, sheds and out-houses and one man his dwelling-place. All the hay on the Logan bottoms, which had been put up for the cattle on Colonel Off's Cedar county ranch, a farm containing five thousand acres, has been destroyed. There are many large herds of cattle in that region and as the hay has been destroyed the loss will be very hard on the stockmen. The fire, which seems to have started about the centre of Knox county, just below the Santee Sioux Indian reservation, has been beating south against a strong wind, which has materially stayed its progress. Should this wind suddenly decrease, the fire may penetrate the southern border of this county and work incalculable damage.

Mason & Hamlin Pianos.

Mason & Hamlin bid fair to become as famous for their upright pianos as they have long been for their world renowned cabinet organs. The distinguished feature about the "Mason & Hamlin Upright" is an important improvement in the method of holding the strings of the piano, which originated in their own factory. The strings are secured by metalic fastenings, instead of by the friction of pins set in wood, as has been the case, and the advantages resulting are numerous and highly important. Among them are the following: Wonderful beauty and musical quality in tone; far less liability of getting out of tune; greater reliability in trying climates; and greater solidity of construction and durability. Mason & Hamlin have made 150,000 organs. They can hardly expect to make as many pianos, but they will doubtless be called upon for a very large number. Indeed, their piano department is now running to its utmost capacity, and the company is behind in orders. So great is the demand that the company is now arranging for a large additional factory building.

Sad End of a Belle's Existence.

From the Harrisburg PATRIOT.

BELLEFONTE, Oct. 9. — Clarence Clark, a former wealthy druggist of Bellefonte, committed suicide some weeks ago, and yesterday afternoon his wife killed herself by taking opium. Annie Johnson, twenty years ago, was the belle of Wilkesbarre. She was young, pretty and rich. Clarence Clark was then a successful business man and he succeeded in winning her affections. The young couple lived in style, and everything went well until Clarence commenced to drink and neglected his business. Annie followed in her husband's footsteps, and having acquired the habit of eating opium she became so low that she had no control over herself.

At last they took what remained of their fortune and came to Bellefonte, where for years they were known as terrible drunkards, living in an old shanty until their money was exhausted. The husband, driven to despair, blew out his brains. After her husband's death she drank worse, and yesterday she was found dead in a shanty, with a quantity of opium in her hand, having evidently taken enough to kill her. It is supposed that some of her relatives will bury her.

—DRUGGISTS all report a rapid and steadily increasing demand for McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powder. There is no secret or trick about their popularity. It is solely because people have become convinced through trial or hearing their neighbors say that they are the best and easiest to take vermifuge ever produced. Nasty, sickening, old-fashioned wormseed syrups won't sell. People demand McDonald's Celebrated Worm powders, and won't have anything else, hence their sales are greater than all the other vermifuges combined. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

Will It Pay?

There are some farmers who say, "It will not pay to use Phosphate; it costs too much." Some of these farmers toil year after year on almost barren fields, and hardly raise half a crop of anything. Suppose they would buy a ton or two of Baugh's $25 Phosphate every year, and raise on one acre what they now raise on three, and make their poor land good; get plenty of wheat, rye, grass, straw, manure and, the most needful of all, money. Will it pay? Of course it will. There is nothing a farmer can buy that will pay him so well for his investment in so short a time as Phosphate.

Millheim, Oct. 8th, '85.

—Why go about with that aching head? Try Ayer's Pills. They will relieve the stomach, restore the digestive organs to healthy action, remove the ocstructions that depress nerves and brain, and thus cure your headache permanently.

—Dr. J. W. Stam, of Spring Mills, called at the JOURNAL office yesterday and informed us that he expects to move back to Millheim as soon as he can find a suitable house. He will begin to practice medicine here next week.

D. S. KAUFFMAN & Co.,
Main street, Millheim, Pa.

—The posters announcing Dr. D. H. Mingle's public sale of personal property on the 31st inst. will go up to-day. The Dr. intends moving to Harris, Stephenson county, Ill., in the near future. The best wishes of his many friends will go with him.

—Mr. Frank Weiser, of Aaronsburg, who since Saturday is confined to his sickbed from asthma, and for a time was in a serious condition, we are glad to hear, is somewhat improved and growing stronger. We earnestly hope to see Frank's ultimate recovery.

—Rev. C. W. Wasson, of Mount Union, Huntingdon Co., the successor of C. W. Raver, as pastor of the U. B. congregation at this place, arrived in town on Monday and will reside in J. W. Snook's house, on Main street, lately vacated by Mr. Couldren.

—Landlord W. S. Musser is confined to his bed at present from the troublesome shot wound in his arm. We hear that he had intended to go to Philadelphia this week to undergo medical treatment but was prevented by a renewed bealing of the wound.

—The telephone line between Millheim and Coburn is now an established thing. The places for the poles have been marked off and the poles will be erected in a few days. Eight of our business men are subscribers to the enterprise. Another progressive step for Millheim.

LATE ARRIVAL.—Mrs. E. J. Brumgard, who had been to the East to purchase her stock of Fall and Winter Millinery returned last Friday and at once proceeded to unpack her fine selection of goods. They are now on her counters on exhibition and the ladies are requested to inspect and choose. Her line of Hats, Bonnets, Trimmings, Laces, &c., is complete and tasty.

—Mr. and Mrs. Eckley (nee Kate Ulrich) had intended to move to their home, two miles west of Bellefonte, last Tuesday morning, but were prevented from so doing by the inclemency of the weather. After their departure Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Williams expect to move to the old Ulrich homestead on Penn street, where Mrs. Williams will predominate over the domestic affairs.

—No need to go away for good photographic work. It is done right at home, in Millheim, by our artist, Mr. Geo. Buck. His specimens exhibited in his place of business, on North street give evidence that he is master of his trade. His pictures are excellent and it will pay you to go to him if you wish any work done in his line.

—On Monday forenoon Mr. & Mrs. C. A. Sturgis, of Lewisburg, arrived in town to spend a few days with friends. In the evening they were serenaded by the Millheim band and Charley showed his appreciation of the compliment by swelling the band's treasury with a V.

RESIGNATION.—I hereby resign as Secretary of the Citizens Circulating Library. The members of the Library Association are hereby notified to meet at the Journal Store, Saturday evening, 17th inst., to elect my successor or make some other disposition of the books. B. O. DEININGER.

Oct. 13th, 1885.

—At a glass ball match at Lewisburg last Saturday, C. K. Sober, the celebrated marksman, beat his former records by many odds. Out of 108 balls he broke 100, actually hitting 106, but six of the balls were too thick to be broken with the shot he used. He shot at the balls in eleven different ways. Space does not permit to insert the full score.

—Friday's forenoon train going west was delayed three hours on account of the wrecking, of the eaastward train early in the morning. One of the axles of a lumber car gave out and the train obstructed the track for several hours, preventing the up train from passing. Quite a number of passengers bound east and west had their patience tried by the delay.

—Mr. Mackey and Mr. Ingham, of Williamsport, both gentlemen representing the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company of Philadelphia, tarried a few days in town in the interest of said company. They were callers at the JOURNAL office on Saturday forenoon and we found them right sociable fellows. Call again.

—The public is cordially invited to attend the consecratory services of the Reformed church of Aaronsburg on the 25th instant, at 9:45 a. m. Prof. D. M. Wolf will preach the opening sermon on Wednesday evening previous. Rev. N. J. Miller will officiate on Friday evening. Rev. L. K. Evans, of Pottstown, will preach on Saturday evening and deliver the german address on Sunday morning. Rev. J. H. Dubbs, D. D., of Lancaster, will preach on Sunday morning and evening; and a meeting of the several Sunday schools of the town will be addressed in the afternoon, at 2½ o'clock.

Z. A. YEARICK, Pastor.

—Next Tuesday, the 20th, the State Sunday School Convention will assemble at Sunbury. John Wanamaker, of the Grand Depot in Philadelphia, who is said to be an ardent Sunday school worker, will be in attendance. A successful and interesting convention is being looked for.

—Mr. C. K. Sober, informs us that Jacob Gentzel, near Sober's Post office, boasts of a pumpkin which measures 6 feet, 5½ inches in diameter and weighs 127½ pounds. That beats the one mentioned in Lewisburg's Chronicle of last week altogether, the difference being 17½ pds. in favor of Gentzel's pumpkin. It must be monstrous.

—If compelled to leave home without breakfast, to go away on an early morning train on our railroad, remember that you can get a good warm lunch at F. P. Barker's restaurant at Coburn. Frank always keeps the best the market affords, such as fruits, oysters, &c. and will be glad to feed the hungry traveler at his place, directly opposite the depot. Give him a call.

MY SON, aged nine years, was afflicted with catarrh, the use of Ely's Cream Balm effected a complete cure.—W. E. Hamman, Druggist, Easton, Pa. 40 4t —OCTOBER is a good month for merchant to examine their stock of Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine and include a winter's supply in their next order. The people have found out by experience that it can be relied on in all cases of croup, whooping-cough, colds, and lung troubles of any nature, and will have it. A good article draws trade while worthless preparations drive it away. It should be a source of satisfaction to a dealer as well, to know he is giving good honest value for money received. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

OBITUARY.

During the last year the Reaper Death has cut many of the citizens of quiet old Aaronsburg. Some of those who have long been tottering on the verge of the grave have fallen. The strong and rugged have been cut down; but it is seldom we are called upon as now to chronicle the removal of a child. This time it is Maggie Burd, a dear little girl of scarcely nine years, who has gone, and left a home sad and lonely, a mother's heart almost broken, and many little friends to weep for their companion. The Lutheran S. S. of which Maggie was a faithful and devoted scholar feels its loss. Our ranks have long been unbroken, and we now mourn with the sorrowing relatives, for one of our tender lambs, which we have tried to feed upon green pastures, and lead beside the still waters. Her place will now be vacant, her loss felt, and her memory sacred. We know that the All-wise Father who loves these lambs even better than we can love them, has sent a messenger into our little fold, and we dare not, would not murmur. Perhaps it is to win us all closer to Himself the loving Shepherd, that He has called this lamb from the earthly fold to help us lead the others nearer to Him, who died for them and us, so that when they are called they may be ready to enter into unspeakable joy. How much sorrow and temptation Maggie has escaped by being thus early called, God only knows. She only budded on earth to bloom in Heaven.

Little Maggie now has left us,
Gone to be with Jesus blest.
In that bright and golden city,
There to dwell in peace and rest.

Sweet brown eyes late brightly beaming,
Now are closed in death's long rest.
And her dimpled hands are folded,
Meekly folded on her breast.

Maggie, tender little flower.
Jesus called her—and He knows
Why, He plucks the tender rose bud
Before, the drooping withered rose.

Yes, the angels bright have met her,
Bade her welcome to that home,
From whose fair and blessed portals
She will never wish to roam.

But although we know that Maggie
Ne'er again will meet us here,
Yet we know, if we love Jesus
Soon we all shall meet her there.

TAKE SIMMONS LIVER REGULATOR

For all Diseases of the Liver, Kidneys, Stomach and Spleen.

This purely vegetable preparation, now so celebrated as a Family Medicine, originated in the South in 1828. It acts gently on the Bowels and Kidneys and corrects the action of the Liver, and is, therefore, the best preparatory medicine, whatever the sickness may prove to be. In all common diseases it will, unassisted by any other medicine, effect a speedy cure.

The Regulator is safe to administer in any condition of the system, and under no circumstances can it do harm. It will invigorate like a glass of wine, but is no intoxicating beverage to lead to intemperance; will promote digestion, dissipate headache, and generally tone up the system. The dose is small, not unpleasant, and its virtues undoubted.

No loss of time, no interruption or stoppage of business while taking the Regulator.

Children complaining of Colic, Headache, or Sick Stomach, a teaspoonful or more will give relief.

If taken occasionally by patients exposed to MALARIA, will expel the poison and protect them from attack.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

I have been practicing medicine for twenty years, and have never been able to put up a vegetable compound that would, like Simmons Liver Regulator, promptly and effectively move the Liver to action, and at the same time aid (instead of weakening) the digestive and assimilative powers of the system. Surface Indications

What a miner would very properly term "surface indications" of what is beneath, are the Pimples, Sties, Sore Eyes, Boils, and Cutaneous Eruptions with which people are annoyed in spring and early summer. The effete matter accumulated during the winter months, now makes its presence felt, through Nature's endeavors to expel it from the system. While it remains, it is a poison that festers in the blood and may develop into Scrofula. This condition causes derangement of the digestive and assimilatory organs, with a feeling of enervation, languor, and weariness—often lightly spoken of as "only spring fever." These are evidences that Nature is not able, unaided, to throw off the corrupt atoms which weaken the vital forces. To regain health, Nature must be aided by a thorough blood-purifying medicine; and nothing else is so effective as

The medical profession indorse AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and many attestations of the cures effected by it come from all parts of the world. It is, in the language of the Hon. Francis Jewett, ex-State Senator of Massachusetts and ex-Mayor of Lowell, "the only preparation that does real, lasting good."

QUAKER
Is the Best
TABLE SAUCE.

Thousands of articles are now manufactured that in former years had to be imported, paying high import duty as it is now being done on Lea & Perrins table sauce; the QUAKER TABLE SAUCE takes its place; it has been pronounced by competent judges just as good and even better. The QUAKER SAUCE has slowly but surely gained great importance and is replacing the very best imported sauce on the shelf of the grocer, the tables of the restaurant and the tables of the rich and poor men, greatly prized and relished by all on account of its piquancy, aroma, taste, strength and pureness. The inventor has by years of study of the secret virtues contained in the aromatic spices of the Indies and China, such as mace, nutmeg, cinnamon, genuine Jamaica ginger, and peppers and buds of trees unknown to most men, and by long practice succeeded to combine their extracts in such a liquid form as we now find it, of agreeable taste, and so invigorating as to be taken in place of stomach bitters. By manufacturing this sauce here, heavy import duties and freights are saved, and it is sold at a lower figure to the dealer, who making a better profit on Quaker Sauce can sell it to the consumer cheaper than the very best imported article hardly equaling ours. If your grocer does not keep it, write us for prices, etc. Sold in bottles or by the gallon.

Old Virginia Matrons.

The old-fashioned Virginia matron was not feminine in the modern sense of the word, which makes it synonomous with trivial, feeble and inane. She was feminine, however, in the sense of being and doing what is appropriate to woman.

A letter written by Mrs. Carrington, describing a visit which she and her husband, a soldier of the Revolution, made to Mount Vernon, just before Washington's death gives a view of the Virginia lady of one hundred years ago. After mentioning that Washington extended his retiring hour from 9 to 12 to talk about the scenes of the war, and that Mrs. Washington spoke of the days of her public life as 'her lost days,' she writes:

'Let us repair to the old lady's room, which is precisely in the style of our good old aunt's—that is to say, nicely fixed for all sorts of work. On one side sits the chambermaid, with her knitting; on the other, a little colored pet, learning to sew.

'An old, decent woman is there, with her table and shears, cutting out the negroe's winter clothes, while the good lady directs them all, incessantly knitting herself.

'She points out to me several pairs of nice colored stockings and gloves she had just finished, and presents me with a pair half done, that she begs I will finish and wear for her sake.

'It is wonderful, after a life spent as these good people have necessarily spent theirs, to see them, in retirement, assume those domestic habits that prevail in our country.'

The words we have italicized show that Martha Washington, instead of being singular, was a type of Virginia matrons. The words of Proverbs describe them: 'She seeketh wool and flax, and worketh willingly with her hands.' 'She girdeth her loins with strength, and maketh strong her arms.' 'She looketh well to the ways of her household, and eateth not the bread of idleness.'—Truth's Companion.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant ao the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

A CERTAIN Republican official has an old colored man in his office who builds fires, sweeps out and holds the fort while the official goes out to "see a man," or on other business. The other day a visitor met the old darkey on the street.

"Sam," he called to him, "is Mr. X. in his office?"

"Yes, sah; leas' ways he war when I come away."

"Well, I've got to go up to the next square; do you think he'll be there when I get back?"

"I don't know 'bout dat, sah, Yo' see, boss, hits a gittin mighty nigh on ter de time when yo' can't fin' no 'Publicans in der offices, an' Ise a little shaky ebbery time I leabs de boss dat' when I come bak dar'll be some Dimocrat er udder settin' in his cheer, jis ez if ho owned de whole shebang. HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER.

The great popularity of this preparation, after its test of many years, should be an assurance, even to the most skeptical, that it is really meritorious. Those who have used HALL'S HAIR RENEWER know that it does all that is claimed.

It causes new growth of hair on bald heads—provided the hair follicles are not dead, which is seldom the case; restores natural color to gray or faded hair; preserves the scalp healthful and clear of dandruff; prevents the hair falling off or changing color; keeps it soft, pliant, lustrous, and causes it to grow long and thick.

HALL'S HAIR RENEWER produces its effects by the healthful influence of its vegetable ingredients, which invigorate and rejuvenate. It is not a dye, and is a delightful article for toilet use. Containing no alcohol, it does not evaporate quickly and dry up the natural oil, leaving the hair harsh and brittle, as do other preparations.

Buckingham's Dye FOR THE WHISKERS

Colors them brown or black, as desired, and is the best dye, because it is harmless; produces a permanent natural color; and, being a single preparation, is more convenient of application than any other.
